

Manawatu Update

October 2025

After finishing at one of my workplaces at the end of last month, I'm taking a few weeks to work on the house build I've been doing for the last few years. I'm looking to be completed with this by October/November. Regular activities continue as usual. Chaplaincy in the three houses is ever changing with new faces. Sunday school teaching is monthly, and I've been getting three young leaders to assist. One of them started helping me with the sketch-board drawing and they also assisted with the memory verse, games, and 'Zonk' quiz.

One-to-one evangelism is a regular activity, but I've also had several conversations with two-five in a group, particularly at the skate-park when I watch my son. The school holidays are coming up next week and I'll be helping out again at Highland Home Camp in the second week. These are fun times for the children, and I appreciate being invited back when I'm available.

I haven't been to the weekly community meal for a few weeks and will be looking forward to that again from next week. Our children are doing well at school. My wife is looking for some more part-time hours of work to supplement what she already has. I am also looking for some more work stability having finished with some of the community work I was doing.

Thank you all for your prayers. Evan
